Gwen Yarbrough’s charcoal/pencil drawing was accepted to hang in the State Capitol beginning July 1 through December. She was told the Governor’s wife selected 40 entries. ASTA-The Rescued Dog was chosen apparently because Mrs. Beshear loves dogs and really liked the drawing of Gwen.

There will be a reception in December to select a winner. The display will be open to the public every day from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. The paintings can be viewed online at governor.ky.gov/gallery

ASTA-The Rescued Dog

“For this portrait, I used charcoal and pencil instead of my usual watercolor medium. I wanted to show the hair texture and shaded features that I knew charcoal would give. I always feel a connection when painting portraits especially with ASTA. I felt comfort knowing I captured this rescued dog on paper to be forever remembered and never forgotten again.” Gwen Yarbrough
